

IAC's Match.com to Acquire People Media from American Capital

NEW YORK – July 7, 2009 – Today Match.com, an operating business of IAC (Nasdaq: IACI), announced that it has signed an agreement to acquire People Media, a leading operator of targeted dating sites, from American Capital Ltd. (Nasdaq: ACAS), funds affiliated with American Capital and other investors. IAC will pay $80 million in cash for People Media, which had $11.6 million of EBITDA in 2008.

The acquisition of People Media will expand and strengthen Match.com's position in the online dating space. Match.com is already the leading broad-based site in the United States, while People Media is the leading operator of sites focused on specific demographic groups, operating 27 sites including BlackPeopleMeet.com, SingleParentMeet.com, SeniorPeopleMeet.com, BBPeopleMeet.com and LDSPlanet.com, with a combined 255 thousand paying subscribers.

“It's clear that some people are drawn to online communities defined by their own demographic characteristics, and Josh Meyers, People Media's CEO, and his team have done a tremendous job of developing and operating those communities,” said Greg Blatt, CEO of Match.com. “We believe People Media's momentum will continue, and that the combination of Match.com and People Media can accelerate each business' current growth trends in a variety of ways, including through the sharing of product development and online marketing expertise and the ability to market a broader array of services to the combined customer base, thereby improving customer acquisition economics for both companies.”

“We are thrilled to be joining forces with Match.com,” said Josh Meyers, CEO of People Media. “People Media is already the leader in targeted dating, and by combining with Match.com we will accelerate our growth and cement our market leadership position in this segment.”
